

New Wellness Community Video Captures Prestigious Silver Telly Award at 23rd Annual Competition

The Wellness Community is pleased to announce that it has captured a Silver Telly Award at the organization's 23rd annual competition. The Telly Awards have become a well-known, highly respected national competition and one of the most sought-after awards in the TV, commercial and video industry. The judges consist of a group of well over twenty highly qualified production professionals, including those from ad agencies, TV stations, production houses and corporate video departments.

All told for all categories, there were 11,114 entries in 2001. The Wellness Community won the Silver Award (highest honor) in the non-broadcast, health and medicine category. Silver Winners must score 9 or above out of 10 points. The Wellness video competed with major television network, corporate, business, and nonprofit videos.

Wellness Community of Philadelphia former executive director Trish Wellenbach comments: "The Wellness Community extends its appreciation to producer/director/writer Lisa Moss and her crew from Euro-Pacific Film & Video Productions of Tinton Falls, New Jersey for having the patience and skill to create the final product, Susan Sherman and the Independence Foundation for funding it, and most importantly, our participants, who shared their compelling stories and intimate details to help other people with cancer and their loved ones in the future."

Euro-Pacific's Lisa Moss adds this: "Thank you for allowing me to collaborate with you on such a worthwhile project. Your input and guidance were invaluable to the program's success, as were the outstanding participants in the video itself."
